

Beginning with a yes

Beginning with a yes

And leaving the rest

As one leaves a memory

Like a cloth of undefined colour

Because everything will return

At a precise moment

Not of one's choosing

But this surprise will be nothing new

We are the same as before the ones who on that day

Walked together hand in hand

Under an enormous sky bathed in stars

In such a way the memory is there a life for ever

Merged into the skin the blood the eyes

And if someone smiles at us we soar into the air

Once again in the street

The trees the perfume of the night

The summer your lips the fear

The strength of unconscious love

I go today along another street
Telling of all those things I left unfinished
Through being so young
Only fifteen
And you something else
That's why it was so beautiful
Because it was so different
So unique so strong
Inside my body
Live other bodies
That never leave
Warm companions
Serene friends
That from time to time
Utter a cry
With a different energy
To give me life
And go on living
The life which still remains
Today

For me to meander through